

Air India

Air India Limited is the national Airline of India, flying a worldwide network of passenger and cargo services. With 159 airplanes in its fleet, the National Aviation Company of India Limited administers the state-owned Air India and Indian Airlines merger. Air India is the 16th largest airline in Asia, serving 25 destinations worldwide, and, with its affiliated carriers, serves over 100 cities. Air India has codeshare agreements with 13 other international airlines. In 2010, Air India is expected to join Star Alliance, the world's largest airline alliance. Air India was founded by J. R. D. Tata in 1932 as Tata Airlines, a division of Tata Sons Ltd. (now Tata Group). On 8 June 1962, the airline's name was officially truncated to Air India. On 11 June 1962, Air India became the world's first all-jet airline.
